Homework

Book Reports:

Due: Wednesday, September 30

At least one book report is due each month. A book report may be accompanied by a project such as a diorama or mobile. Each book report will receive one ticket for use at our reading carnival in January. If it is accompanied by a project, an additional ticket will be given. If you read a Golden Sower from the previous year, or a Golden Sower nominee, you will receive an additional ticket. At the end of each semester, we will have a reading carnival to celebrate our reading success.

Book reports are due by the last school day of every month, but could be presented before that deadline. Please practice three times to an adult before making your presentation to the class. No late reports will be accepted.

One book from the "genre of the month" is required. Any additional chapter books may be selected from any genre.

September: Science Fiction/Fantasy/Mystery

October: History/Historical Fiction

Reading Homework Hints:

Speed

Did you group the words in each sentence together? Put your words together. Make it sound like you are talking.

Chunk the text with phrasing as you read. Read certain words quickly and others slowly.

Expression

Did you read the punctuation marks? Make your voice go down when you see the period. Make your voice go up when you come to a question mark.

Math

Homework is being sent home on a daily basis. Each homework assignment connects what students have learned in the classroom and should be able to apply these skills to the homework. We are currently working on adding and subtracting numbers with regrouping.

Those who have access to the internet can find our math homework at www.eduplace.com.

From there click on Math. Then select the blue icon called Houghton Mifflin @2005 textbook support. Next, click on the four (turtle). Find leveled practice and click. We are currently on Unit 3. Students will write in their planner the lesson we are doing. Finally, choose the lesson and unit resource (homework). Feel free to navigate around and find interesting things your child can do to reinforce math skills.

Spelling

Homework is sent home Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. These are due back the next day. You can help your child review the words on Thursday night.

Writing

Students will focus on writing personal narratives, and building rich vocabularies.

If you can help ...
Facial Tissue and Hand
Sanitizer would be appreciated.
